

Easton's Nurture Nature Center plans a Lehigh Valley Food Forum

Updated Jan 03, 2019; Posted Jul 25, 2012

Comment

0 shares

By Katie Fritchman | The Express-Times

View full size Express-Times

Photo | BILL ADAMS The Nurture Nature Center will house the Lehigh Valley Food Forum, an evening of discussion, food and thought.

The

Nurture Nature Center

in

Easton

will house an evening of food and thought this Thursday night.

The center announced its free event -- a Lehigh Valley Food Forum -- for 6:30 to 9 p.m. tomorrow.

A community art exhibit, called "Food for Thought" will be available for viewing at 6:30 p.m., and a new film, titled, "Two Billion More Coming to Dinner," premieres at 7 p.m.

Special guest Lynn Prior will also discuss food sustainability in the Lehigh Valley. Prior is the director of the Greater Lehigh Valley chapter of

Buy Fresh, Buy Local

.

Discussion and feedback given by guests is greatly encouraged. Guest feedback will be incorporated into the Lehigh Valley Fresh Food Access Plan, according to the Nurture Nature Center.

Locally grown vegetables, along with other snacks and a beer tasting, will be available free of charge.

To register, call Kate Brandes at 610-253-4432 or e-mail at kbrandes@nurturenature.org